Lost River Alpacas...

is located in the beautiful Nooksack Valley, just 5 miles from the Canadian Border. It is one of two remaining farms zoned as agricultural left in the City of Nooksack.

Homesteaded in 1892, the original farm house is now used as a shop. Towering old timber and 100 year old apple trees provide fruit and shade for the alpacas in the summer. A former dairy farm, it is an authentic example of farming in the last century. It has a 3,000 sq. ft. barn, a milking parlor converted to store fiber, a milk house that will be converted to a health center for treating alpacas.

Take time out from the hectic life of the city and pay a visit to Lost River Alpacas. Tours are provided to the public seven days a week by appointment.
